	Speaker: Ms. Audrey Perez – Head of Department QSE &amp; Maintenance, Dragages Singapore Pte Ltd
11.45am-12.45pm	Session 3 - "Engineering the Law – Science or Art?" The practice of Construction Law is interesting for its blend of engineering technicalities and legal issues. Often, a good understanding of engineering and technical matters arising from a construction dispute is the key to a successful claim or defence. This is especially so if the dispute extends beyond strictly legal issues, and involves complex technical concepts. The involvement of technical experts at an early stage will assist both client and lawyer to focus on the crux of the dispute between the parties. Construction disputes are notorious for their endless days of hearings and voluminous documents, the bulk of which may not even see the light of day. An appreciation of engineering issues before the commencement of proceedings is critical not only for the proper and concise formulation of a claim or defence, but will also result in savings time and costs for all parties. Engineering is a science. The practice of law is an art. To be effective either as counsel or arbitrator, one needs a comprehensive grasp of both. This session will discuss some of the ways to fuse science and art to your advantage.
	Speaker: Mr. Tan Chee Meng SC – Head, International Projects &amp; Partner, M/s WongPartnership LLP

1.45 – 2.00pm	Registration for Afternoon Module
Afternoon Module: "Construction Law Updates 2008" Chairperson: Mr. Thio Shen Yi SC – Joint Managing Director and Head, Litigation, TSMP Law Corporation; Director, Allens Arthur Robinson TSMP
2.00 – 3.15pm	Session 4 – Update and Review on Developments in Construction Law This update highlights several recent decisions of the Singapore High Court and the Court of Appeal which raises issues pertaining to building and construction law. Of particular interests are decisions which deal with the liability and duty of care of construction professionals, the scope of recovery of damages and an update on cases relating to the Building and Construction Industry Security of Payment Act (Cap. 30B).
	Speaker: Mr. Latiff Ibrahim – Managing Partner, M/s Harry Elias Partnership
3.15 – 3.30pm	Afternoon Break
3.30 – 4.35pm	Session 5 – Non-Compliance with the Security of Payment Act: Are the Adjudications invalid? - Other current issues in connection with construction industry adjudications Strict compliance with the Security of Payment Act appears to be the accepted orthodoxy, to the extent that it has been said that non compliance with any of its provisions will render the adjudication commenced thereunder invalid, and any adjudicator's appointment void. This position seems to be supported by various recent English decisions. The Singapore Court of Appeal has made many pronouncements of late regarding the consequences of non-compliance with statutory provisions, the most recent being the decisions in the collective sale cases of Horizon Towers and Phoenix Court. What lessons and what implications do these decisions hold for cases under the Security of Payment Act? Would non-compliance necessarily be fatal?
	Speaker: Mr. Edwin Lee – Partner, M/s Rajah &amp; Tann
4.35 – 4.55pm	Afternoon Panel Discussion &amp; Q&amp;A Session Discussion Moderator Mr. Thio Shen Yi SC – Joint Managing Director and Head, Litigation, TSMP Law Corporation; Director, Allens Arthur Robinson TSMP Panellists: Mr. Latiff Ibrahim – Managing Partner, M/s Harry Elias Partnership Mr. Edwin Lee – Partner, M/s Rajah &amp; Tann
